

NIFTY SPOT : IMMEDIATE SUPPORT AT 25000-24850

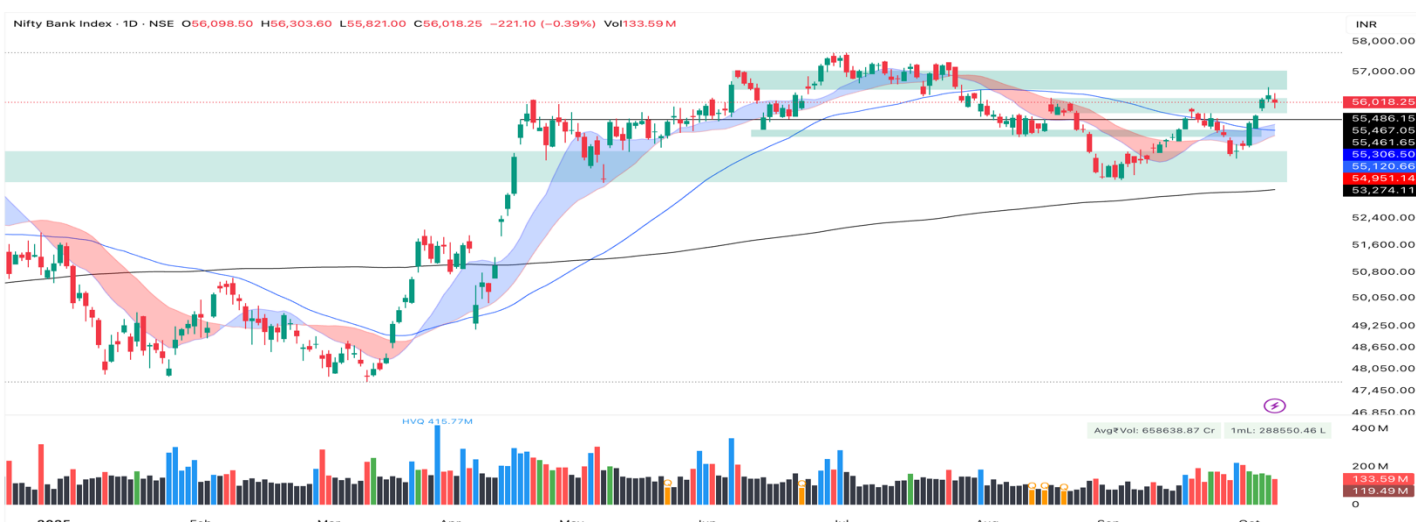

The benchmark index witnessed a sharp reversal today in what appears to be a classic bull trap, where the recent breakout failed to sustain. The index fell back into its consolidation range and closed below the critical 25,100 level, indicating strong selling pressure near the highs. The zone of 25,100-25,200 has now been re-established as a formidable resistance. The immediate support to watch on the downside is 25,000. A break below this could signal further weakness. The options data now shows call writers have aggressively regained control of the 25,000 and 25,100 strikes, shifting the immediate bias to negative.

BANKNIFTY SPOT : IMMEDIATE SUPPORT 55500-55000

The banking index experienced a significant rejection from higher levels, completely erasing the gains from its recent breakout. The failure to hold the breakout level suggests that bears have overpowered the bulls for now, with strong resistance established near 56,400. The index is now likely to test its immediate support around 55,500, with the psychological mark of 55,000 being the next crucial level to watch. From an options perspective, the 56,000 call strike has once again become a major barrier, suggesting the upside is capped in the near term.
