

NIFTY SPOT : IMMEDIATE SUPPORT AT 23800-23650

Source – TradingView, BP Equities Research

The benchmark index closed at 23,914, down 141 points, gapping down at 23,858 before extending to a fresh low of 23,787 that broke decisively below the 24,000 support, then reversing sharply to close exactly at the session high, a hammer structure with a long lower shadow and virtually no upper wick that shows dip buyers stepping in aggressively below 24,000 even though the close remains well under that level on net. This confirms the breakdown, though the strength of the intraday reversal keeps the door open for a retest of 24,000 from below rather than an outright collapse. RSI extended its slide to, and MACD line has now crossed below signal, with the histogram at negative 9, the first confirmed bearish crossover since momentum began cooling last week. Volume eased slightly from Tuesday's, meaning the breakdown and the reversal both came without a distinct pickup in participation. The close remains well below both the 50 DMA and the 200 DMA, with 24,000 now the immediate level to reclaim and the low of 23,787 the support to hold on any renewed weakness.

BANKNIFTY SPOT : IMMEDIATE SUPPORT 56500-56000

Source – TradingView, BP Equities Research

The banking index closed at 57,172, down 238 points, opening at 57,006 essentially at the psychological 57,000 level, dipping below it to a low of 56,823, then rallying to a high of 57,221 and closing near that high, another hammer structure with a long lower shadow that mirrors the benchmark index's own defended dip below a round number. This extends the pullback from Monday's failed breakout to a third session, with the close still well below both the 50 DMA and the 200 DMA, keeping the bull trap structure firmly in place. RSI eased, and MACD line fell sharply, with signal easing to negative 36, though the histogram at 49 remains positive, meaning the line is still technically above signal even as both continue to weaken quickly. Volume was essentially unchanged from Tuesday's, consistent with a defended low rather than a fresh bout of aggressive selling. With 57,000 having held as intraday support and 57,412 to 57,616 the DMA cluster still capping the index above, this zone remains the range to watch for a resolution in either direction.
